

Israel, Palestine and the Rule of Law

A Symposium on the Rights and Wrongs of Israel's Occupation of Palestine with Prof. John Dugard and Prof. Norman Finkelstein

It's probably the most important judicial ruling regarding peace and justice in the Middle East that you've never heard about.

In July 2004, the International Court of Justice (ICJ), known as the World Court, gave a landmark opinion in favor of Palestine on borders, the Wall, settlements, and Jerusalem, which are all final status questions on Israel's occupation of Palestine. Come hear Prof. Finkelstein and Prof. Dugard discuss this landmark opinion to create a just and peaceful resolution of the Israel Palestine conflict.

A son of holocaust survivors, Prof. Norman Finkelstein is the author of several highly acclaimed books such as Beyond Chutzpah on the Israel Palestine conflict, and The Holocaust Industry. He has written on the ICJ 2004 advisory opinion extensively and on the Israeli High Court's response to the opinion.

Prof. John Dugard is a professor of international law and has served on the International Court of Justice and until recently was Special Rapporteur on human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied by Israel since 1967. He is also considered to be the father of human rights law in South Africa.
